Children's Jewelry

Val Damon's line for children previewed with great success. Inspired by the birth of her own child, Val sought to create a line of children's jewelry which encompassed her unique design language as well as her history of quality craftsmanship. The collection incorporates timeless childhood themes for boys and girls as well as more traditional symbols of love and protection.

Pendants of sterling silver, vermeil or 18 karat gold rest on a length of Japanese cord with a matching button closure, as do bracelets. Or they can dangle from a delicate length of chain. Tiny stud earrings of flowers and hearts complete the line.

A mother herself, Val has considered every detail carefully. Every piece has soft, rounded edges, including the well considered clasps or button closures, and earrings have screw backs for safety. On a common sense note, Val states "All children, especially those under three years old, should be supervised at all times, especially when wearing jewelry of any kind."

Any item from the Val Damon children's collection would be a delightful gift, a keepsake to be cherished for life and passed on to a child or loved one after years of enjoyment.
